> The Founding of the Bank of England-Paper Money. From the Richmond Sun.

One of the most important events in the system of modern finance occured one hundred and eighty-four years ago: The foundation of the Bank of England. England, William and MARY on the throne, was at war and in financial distess. Says MACCAUL-EY, "The Bank of St. George had currency necessary to pay all bonds nearly completed its third century. It had begun to receive deposits and to make loans before Columbus had crossed the Atlantic, before Gama had turned the Cape, when a Christian bonds without regard to its value in Emperor was reigning at Constanticoin; that the Government should nople, when a Mohommedan Sultan pay in the currency wherein it con- was reigning at Grenada, when Flortracted to pay, and by the issue of ence was a republic, when Holland obeyed an hereditary Prince. All these things had been changed. New continents and new oceans had been discovered. The Turk was at Constantinople; the Castilian was at Grenada, Florence had its hereditary Prince; Holland was a republic; but the bank of St. George was still receiving deion of the Government, nor at an posits and making loans.
